

Game Day Competition Equalizer

Applies to 3rd Grade and older teams

There may be games where the skill level of the teams is not well matched. In order to keep the score of such games reasonable and within the spirit of recreational soccer the following procedure will be followed:

1. When the score of a game in progress reaches a goal differential of four, the team with the lower score can add one additional player. As an example, the players on the field would be 8 v 9.
 2. If the team with fewer goals scores two goals thus making the score a two goal differential, the extra player will be removed with each team then playing with the same number of players on the field.
 3. If the score of the game again reaches a goal differential of four, an additional player will again be added.
 4. If the score of the game should reach a goal differential of six, the team with the lower score can add a second additional player. The two extra players will remain playing until the score reverts to a two goal differential at which point all extra players will be removed and the teams will again play with an equal number of players.
 5. The above process repeats until the conclusion of the game.
- If there are any questions during the game about this process, defer to the referee who is in control of the game. It is possible that the referee may need to be reminded of the score differential and when players can be added and removed.
